

Pet Portraits

Don't forget the pet lover this season! Present them with a portrait of their beloved pet painted by Lisa Gleim. She works in a variety of mediums such as charcoal, pastel and oils. The majority of portrait seekers, however, prefer charcoals, providing a black-and-white image with a certain spirit that photos lack. A life-size charcoal of a head and shoulder is $300, and Lisa will take a photograph (or use one from the owner, if necessary) with which to work. Portraits take roughly two weeks, but can be rushed during the holiday season. Lisa also paints portraits of children and has a collection of pastel landscapes available for purchase as well.
